ULowell Chiefs steal ball and title from Alaska-Anchorage

By Chas Kelley
and Chuck Mahaleris

Leo Parent, dubbed "the missing link" in ULowell's game plan, scored 22 points and made an extremely clutch steal to seal the Division II championship game for the Chiefs. Parent said of his "Havlicek-type" play with just 21 seconds left in the game: "I saw the screen coming. I heard the call. I saw the pass. I went for it. I could see the pass was going to be short."

Parent, who will be returning next year because his transfer from Manhattan College gives him one year of eligibility, burned Alaska-Anchorage's defense, going 7 for 9 from the floor in the opening period. He added eight first-half rebounds, showing how dominant a center he truly is.

Former high school teammate Bobby Licare tossed in a total of fifteen points after faltering early on. "I struggled in the first half," said the 5-11 guard, "trying to get into the flow of the game."

The Chiefs, initially ranked 20th in the nation and working better later in the season, struggled to the point beating top-ranked Florida-Southern (who, incidentally, won the consolation game over Troy State, 94-84) in the semi-finals and fifth-ranked New Haven twice during the regular season. It took 174 practices to get to the final game, in this the first time ever that ULowell has reached the NCAA Tournament.

When asked if the game versus Alabama A&M was tough, Director of Athletic Training Bob Worden stated, "There were no easy games."

Worden went on to say about the tournament MVP, "Parent picked off the pass that sealed [the game.] Parent is the best [college basketball] player in the country."

At Tuesday's "pep rally," Athletic Director Dr. Wayne Edwards, Coach Doucette, Mayor Kennedy of Lowell, and the team tri-captains (Licare, King, and Parent) all gave brief speeches of pride and thanks. More importantly, though, was the fact that the students were there to show their support for the National Champion Chiefs. For a school with little student participation, the response was termed "wild," and was one of the largest turnouts in recent years.

Spring break riot

(Tex) In the worst case of spring break rioting since 1986, 4 people were stabbed and 2 police officers hurt as an estimated 3,000 vacationing students rioted on Mustang Island on March 20.

Though no one is completely sure just why the intoxicated vacationers began fighting, it took 100 police officers using helicopters and tear gas to finally calm the situation. 8 people were arrested and the injured taken to a nearby hospital for care.

In the 1986 riot in Palm Beach, 500 students were arrested for throwing rocks and bottles at police and ripping clothes off women.

Destructo-tests

Washington University of St. Louis officials have admitted they mistakenly shredded both questions and answers to a 3-hour law exam before they had a chance to grade it. "Some students want their money back, they're so furious," Student Bar Association President Maia Brodie said.

The tests, Brodie maintained, "could make the difference between a $26,000 job and a $40,000 job" after graduation for law students.

In a memo, written two weeks after he found out about the shredding, Law Dean Dorsey D. Ellis blamed a student "working without supervision" in the registrar's office for accidentally destroying the tests.

Ellis said students who took the test would get a "credit" instead of a grade, and that the credit would not be calculated into their GPA's.

Abstinence isn't always best

Athletes who abstain from sexual intercourse before competition because they think they'll play better may be fooling themselves.

"The notion that sexual intercourse diminishes athletic performance is a myth," said Dr. Loren Cordain, who directed a study of college athletes at Colorado State University (CSU).

Of 20 to 35 male, married intramural athletes agility, anaerobic power, reaction and endurance was the same after intercourse as they were after 5 days of abstinence.

"If intercourse didn't affect the performance of these subjects, it probably doesn't affect other athletes," mused Cordain. "No reason exists for boxers, football players or any other athletes to abstain from sex for fear of affecting their athletic performance."

Boston Church or Cult of Christ?

By Margaret Smith

Is the Boston Church of Christ (BCC), which has a chapter on campus, simply a group of genial individuals who study the Bible and meditate together on their Christian Faith? Or is it a cult that preys on susceptible students and uses the Bible as a front? Last semester, the Department of On-Campus Housing decided to investigate this controversial organization.

The investigation is the result of several RAs from Bourgeois and other dorms bringing complaints from residents to the Department of Campus Life last fall. The complaints included reports of students being cornered, repeatedly pressured to attend Bible study meetings, and being afraid to stay at their dorms on weekends. The troublemakers, students said, claimed to be affiliated with the BCC.

These reports were brought to the attention of Larry Siegel, the Director of On-Campus Housing. He said that he did not wish to single the BCC out as a group, but that it had come to the forefront as a result of the complaints. "Religious solicitation of any kind is forbidden in residence halls," he said, although he cautioned that the university has no concern with the message that a religious group has to send. The concern, he said, is with the method tactics that the BCC or any religious group, might use on campus.

Siegel had received additional reports of parental complaints, and in some instances the police were called to remove people who were coercing students into joining the BCC and refusing to leave. Siegel called it "a self-perpetuating snowball problem." Many of the so-called BCC members, he said, were not even students at ULowell.

When he called them to his office, he said, they were very polite and respectful, but extremely persistent and often quoted Bible passages to justify their behavior.

Siegel's main concern is the welfare of students who may be approached by such individuals. "In a University this size there are large numbers of students who are very susceptible to organized cults."

Commuter students, too, have experienced problems with BCC-affiliated people approaching them in class and in the lounges. One student told of a girl in one of her classes repeatedly asking her to Bible meetings at the church's headquarters in Boston. "She kept calling me," the student said. "The funny thing was, my boyfriend went to one of their suppers, and so the girl wanted to know why I didn't go too. I told her my boyfriend will go to anything that has free food." The bible-toting girl told her stories of travelling to campuses all over the country, following her leader. Finally the student, who is Jewish, agreed to go to a meeting—if the girl would go to Temple with her. After that, she said, the girl left her alone and began calling the student's roommate.

Does this mean that students should be wary of anyone who mentions the Bible or a Bible study group? Not necessarily. Thomas Trembley and Gregory White are co-leaders of a BCC Bible study group on campus in Leitch Hall. Trembley said that his religious group neither distributes pamphlets nor goes knocking on doors of resident halls, and that people come to his services and discussions primarily through word of mouth.

"We talk about the Bible. We look at Jesus' life and how that relates to our own life," he said that he was not aware of individuals who had coerced others to join his group. "Harassment," he stated, "is not our intention."

He does suggest, however, that misunderstanding can result from people being invited to such a meeting and saying "maybe next week," instead of simply "No," in order to avoid a conflict. Then when the person returns next week to remind them of the meeting, the student may feel harassed. He advises anyone who is asked by any group and does not want to be involved to just politely refuse. Trembley's own advisor, Grant Henley, had specifically told members not to use repeated pressure to get individuals to join.

Rev. Imogene Stulken of the Protestant Ministry Center stresses that students should not confuse "the method with the methodology." She also has literature available to students who are unsure whether an individual who has approached them is sincere, or is a member of a cult which looks for vulnerable and lonely people. This pamphlet explains what to look for and how to deal with cult members asking for donations and/or membership.

Business students win award

Edward Goyette and Paul Lewis, both seniors in the College of Management Science, have been declared the recipients of the Fall 1987 Small Business Institute (SBI) Cash Award and a Certificate of Excellence. In announcing the award, Dr. M. Riaz Khan, Director of the CMS's SBI said that the Institute provided counseling to seven companies during Fall 1987. The consulting report prepared by Goyette and Lewis, under the supervision of Timm Shea of the Management Department, was judged to be the best in terms of its researched analysis and recommendations. The award carries $350 and is offered to the best report each semester.

Debate planned for the Student Trustee Candidates April 11, 1988

The Connector is sponsoring a debate between the candidates for Student Trustee. All candidates for Student Trustee are invited to participate.

Interested persons should call Tom Kershaw at 453-1872. The debate will take place only if the candidates present an interest. The event is scheduled for Monday, April 11, 1988 at 4:30. The location will be available at a later date.

Students will be invited to hear the candidates speak about campus issues and to present campaign platforms. The position holds a great deal of power to promote student issues and concerns. Informed students will better be able to choose the most worthy candidate.

One-woman show plays Monday

An existential show by Samuel Beckett, called Happy Days and featuring professional actress Ilona Ricardo, can be seen Monday, April 11 at 1:00 p.m. in the O'Leary Library Media Center.

Winnie, the heroine of Happy Days, is a middle-aged woman trapped to her waist in a mound of sand. Her husband Willie lives in a hole behind the mound. He is still mobile but, in contrast to his chatty wife, is taciturn and asleep most of the time.

Winnie's problem is how to get through her days (one at a time), which are no longer measured by the course of the sun (the old style) but by a bell for waking and for sleep. She muses on whatever comes to mind, but mainly concentrates on establishing communication with her unresponsive husband. When she succeeds, her day becomes one of the "happy" ones of the title. For while isolation (the wilderness) is unbearable, communication means love, and love means life.

Although the play's external setting is not realistic, we can sympathize with Winnie's plight because we are all "stuck" in some way and unable to move. Her situation boils down to the basic question facing us all: What do we do with our lives when we are reduced to the bare essentials? It is in this spirit that we should approach what might be subtitled "One Day in the Life of Winnie".

Actress Ilona Ricardo began reciting as a child in her native Holland, then moved on to repertory theatre in England, Scotland and the U.S., where she gave one-woman shows, sometimes combined with dance, guitar or piano. While getting a doctorate in French literature, she gave frequent dramatic readings of French plays. She is active in the summer concert life on Cape Cod and is now touring in Beckett's Happy Days. She has done film narration and is a veteran broadcaster. Her programs include legends and folktales, modern American monologues, and Virgil's Dido and Aeneas.

Ilona Ricardo will perform Beckett's Happy Days Monday

India Night : A Great Success

By Dharmendra Iani

India Night, sponsored by the Center for the Performing and Visual Arts, in cooperation with the ULowell Chapter of the Indian Students Association, drew an audience of some 500 people to Durgin Hall this past Saturday night.

The program started at 7:00 p.m. with a welcome speech by ISA president Ravi Decece, which was followed by a classical Indian solo by Malathi Sharma, of Andover and mridangam (two headed drum) solo by Prakash Rao, from Boston University. The program was emceed by Mr. Harish Dang, well known around the Boston area for his radio programs.

The event featured different aspects of Indian classical music and dance. The veena, an Indian string instrument, played by Durga Krishnan, fascinated a huge non-Indian crowd. The mystical effect of the veena is said

"The event was exceptionally well organized and it enlightened the ULowell community with the rich and varied heritage of Indian culture."

Dr. Wayne Dudley,
Director, Minority Students
Affairs

to closely resemble the human voice. Carnatic music was played by Rajagoplan, of Boston University along with Laxman Rao of M.I.T.

Dr. Mathur, director of the ULowell Computer Center, performed on flute, accompanied by Nishikant Sonwalker of M.I.T. on tabla-bayan (two drums in one).

The world renowned sitar was played to perfection by Jagadish Gokhale of Northeastern University, along with Ajit Nagral, of Boston University, on tabla. The sitar was the highlight of the night. The Indian folk dances, Bangra and Gharba, were performed by the Bhagat Singh Cultural Club and Lowell High School students, respectively.

The event ended with a brilliant performance of Bharata Natyam by Sunita Nambiar of UMass Amherst. Bharata Natyam is believed to be the oldest form of classical dance, dating back to 300 B.C. It is highly stylized and sophisticated, using expressional compositions.

Authentic Indian cuisine was served throughout the program, which ended with a note of thanks by Chandrashekar Prabhu of the ISA.

India Night is the biggest event the ISA has organized. It was a big success.

U Lowell Players return

In case anyone was concerned the U. Lowell Players have not vanished from the face of the earth. We have merely been orbiting the Space Ship University of Lowell trying to find a place to land. I am happy to report that we have finally touched down on firm ground. We are now in the midst of our third season which has proved to be our best and most trying one.

Not since our birth three years ago has our staying power as a club as well as human beings been tested to such limits as this semester. It is with great joy that I can say that we not only endured but became a stronger organization in the process. This is our story.

The beginning of the semester was met with much anticipation and enthusiasm for we were about to break ground on a new dimension for the club. This spring we were putting on our first musical. It was to be a joint effort between the U. Lowell Players and the Music Department here at the University. This event was very special to the Players for two reasons. Firstly it was to broaden our repertoire as artists so that we could offer more to the student body in the way of performing arts. Secondly and more importantly it was to strengthen the bonds between the club and the university so, as to gain more support and stress the importance of the arts as a part of our education. We had readily prepared for this project and the result was the best turn out for auditions we ever had. An array of talented people came out of the woodwork and it seemed we were off to a promising production but not all clouds have a silver lining. Due to an unfortunate chain of events we lost our musical director for the production and we were forced to cancel doing the musical. This not only disappointed the club members but also discouraged the nonmembers who had auditioned into walking away from the production. Here we were in the middle of the semester with no production scheduled and a dwindled cast. This along with the possibility that a few of our founding members might have to leave the club due to personal obligations, the U. Lowell Players came close to disbanding.

In order to prevent this we as friends had to pull together and re-evaluate what was important to us. To us the U. Lowell Players was not just another club or group of people with a common interest, it was a family. A family of friends that share the love of performing for others and bringing them pleasure no matter how big or small the show. With this as our basis we regrouped and started production on a smaller play, but by no means any less a production than we are noted for. Those of us who contemplated leaving the club were able to stay due to the help and support of their friends, the U. Lowell Players.

We have learned alot this semester about ourselves and about friendship. We faced some hard times but we never gave up and because of this the club is now stronger and better than ever. This Spring's production of "Six Characters in Search of an Author" April 28th thru May 1st in Mahoney Auditorium is sure to be a very special performance in more ways than one. In closing I would like to say that I am proud to be a U. Lowell Player and because a good thing should be shared I urge everyone to drop by our office in Mahoney and see what we are all about.

See you there,
John Forgione, P.R. Director
U. Lowell Players

President's Medal Awards

The President's Medal Award has been established to cite the efforts of the members of the Senior Class of 1988 for service to the University and the Community. a maximum of six awards will be presented at the annual Commencement Exercises by President William T. Hogan.

Qualifications will be reviewed by a committee composed of members of the University Life Staff.

Guidelines

1. Candidate's Statement.

In 500 words or less, please indicate the reasons you feel you qualify as a candidate for this award. Please include only those efforts in which you actively participated. This statement must be typewritten, in paragraph form, and on a 8 1/2" X 11" sheet of paper. No resumes will be accepted. We want you to select and highlight those activities you feel made the most significant contribution to others.

2. Nominations.

Nominations must be typewritten, on 8 1/2" X 11" paper, and signed, listing the name of the student being nominated at the top. This should be followed by a statement explaining why you believe the above student should be considered for the President's Medal. The completed recommendation should be returned to the student nominee for submission.

3. Submission of Papers.

The nominee's statement, along with a maximum of 5 nominations attached, must be submitted as a package to: Office of the University Life, Cumnook Hall, North Campus.

DEADLINE: Friday, April 22, 1988 at 12:00 noon.

(Submissions received late will not be considered.)

Jellybean contest update

The first month of the Jellybean contest have given us a good turnout for the University of Lowell campus. We have gotten more than a handful of guesses, but also many strange looks. Don't you feel sorry for the souls who have to move the unit from one campus to the other?

There are now only eleven days left of the contest with still an extremely wide chance of winning the $125 prize. Don't wait any longer, check below for the location of where your 33rd guess will get you four hundred times that.

Contest ends April 11th at 9:00 p.m. If anyone desires, a recount will be done at that time in the Karate Club Office at Fox 528-529. Otherwise the precount will hold. This is assuming that we will remember to ask Dean Duggan for the key to the cabinet.

The object of this game is to guess the amount of beans without going over. The closest one wins:

FIRST PRIZE - $125 for the winner and 20% of profits from this contest going to his favorite charity.

SECOND PRIZE - The jelly beans & 10% of profits to his charity.

How to play: On a sheet of paper write your name, how to get in touch with you, and your guess. To this sheet, staple a dollar bill and slip it through the slots on either side of the box. The box will be emptied regularly by the Karate Club.

Watch for the game on:

March 31 at West Campus
April 4 & 5 at North Commuter Lounge
April 6 at McGauvran Hall-S.U.B.(South)
April 7 at Smith Cafeteria
April 8 at Memorial Lounge in Kitson Hall
April 11 at Fox Hall-Last Day of Contest.

Everyone is eligible to play except for the Karate Club president.

It's a dog's life

According to the MSPCA:

A medium-sized, white dog was found near its owner's home bound and muzzled with its throat slashed, hung upside down and left to bleed to death.

A 15 year old female dog was found unconscious covered by debris in a sewer pit. She had been sexually molested.

King, a German shepherd, was shot 4 times while protecting his 77 year old owner from an intruder.

How often have you read true stories like the ones presented in this article and said, "That's terrible, but I'm a student what can I do to help?" If you want to help animals please join the University of Lowell Animal Rights group. Not only are we interested in helping to have laws passed to protect animals, we are also interested in making some immediate, local changes in the plight of strays. Our first major project will be a fund raiser to provide emergency medical care for stray dogs who would normally be destroyed.

Did you know that if an injured stray dog (stray is defined as having no tags or identification) is turned in to the Lowell Humane Society with more than a broken leg, and upon the recommendation of the examining veterinarian, there is a very good chance it will be destroyed immediately? According to the society this is because they receive only $20 per dog. This means that there is no time for an owner to locate his missing pet; no seven to ten day holding period. It means that if your dog is tied in the yard and slips off his collar or if someone steals your dog and removes its collar, the dog is branded a stray. Because it has no tags, it now has reduced rights.

If you wish more information, please call Steve at 453-4240 (Box #75); or Carol at 683-2625 after 8 p.m. (Box #1331). Be sure to include your name and the box number where they can send a reply.

Furniture Fair

The Office of University Life and the Building Authority will be sponsoring a "Furniture Fair" in Cumstock Hall Auditorium from Tuesday, April 12th through Thursday, April 14th between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The "Fair" will feature bedroom and living room furniture from a number of companies who are hoping to be offered the contract to furnish the two new residence halls that will be ready for occupancy for Fall Semester 1989. Each company will be given the opportunity to display their "best" within a marked area in the auditorium that reflects the actual dimensions of the bedrooms and living areas of these new suite-style halls. Students, faculty and staff are invited to stop by Cumstock to see and sit on the displays. Surveys will be available so you can tell us which company's furniture you liked best...which was the most comfortable, durable and stylish. Survey results will help to determine which furniture line the University will select...so make it a point to stop by Cumstock next week!

Connector on Spring Break in Cancun

Four out of five booze cruisers read the Connector on Spring Break. Shown here before the ritual porcelain hugging ceremony are ex-Connector advertising manager Dizzy Penny and friends.

15,000 students in search of show

Picture yourself, it's the last weekend of April. You could be at the beach, at the movies, in the back seat of a Chevy, but NO you're sitting in Mahoney Hall. Maybe you're straight as an arrow, maybe you're a little drunk, maybe flat out wasted, but you're there nevertheless. Why? You may ask. Well, the ULowell Players, totally offbeat thespians are putting on another show.

You sit there in your seat trying to understand what's going on and maybe where did you park your car. From what you can gather the play is set in the 1920's or these people are into wearing strange clothes. As you follow along you realize that they are actors in a theater company in the middle of a rehearsal when this crowd of people dressed in black come on stage. This man rants and raves and makes long speeches, this woman starts flirting with every man in sight, that woman sits on a chair and cries, they have two little kids up there as cute as can be but they don't say a word and the guy who's standing there with an attitude problem. There is violence, sex and the explanation for human existence all in one show. Now that's entertainment.

Now if you still don't know what's going on, don't worry about it. I'm in the play and I still don't get it, but hopefully by April it'll all come together. The dates for the show are April 28-30 and May 1st.

So come out and see if you can make any sense out of the whole thing. Maybe you'll become a better person for it. Maybe you'll have a good time. Maybe they'll tow your car while your watching the show. Maybe someone spiked this orange crush I'm drinking.

Attention Graduating Seniors!

If you are planning to complete your degree requirements at the end of the spring 1988 semester, you must notify your college dean of your intent to graduate and must file a "degree candidate card" with the Office of the Registrar. The deadline for both of these actions is March 31, 1988.

If you fail to notify the college dean of your intent to graduate your degree work will not be reviewed and your name will not be included on the Spring 1988 graduation list.

If you fail to file the "degree candidate card" with the Office of the Registrar, the University will not order a diploma for you and, irrespective of your graduation status, you will not receive a diploma at graduation ceremonies on Sunday, June 5th.

1988-89 Residence hall room selection

Undergraduate Students currently residing in On-Campus Housing

The Residence Hall Room Selection process for the 1988-89

academic year will take place from Monday, April 11 through Thursday, April 28, 1988.

Undergraduate students currently living in on-campus housing who wish to live in the residence halls for 1988-89 academic year are guaranteed housing if all procedures are completed by the established deadlines. Current residence hall students will be receiving detailed information regarding this process and should see their RA regarding questions. Note: all housing deposits must be paid by 4:00 p.m. on Friday, April 22, 1988.

Undergraduate Students Who Do Not Currently Reside in On-Campus Housing

Students who are not current on-campus residents that wish to live in the residence halls during the 1988-89 year may sign up for a room by adhering to the following procedures and deadlines:

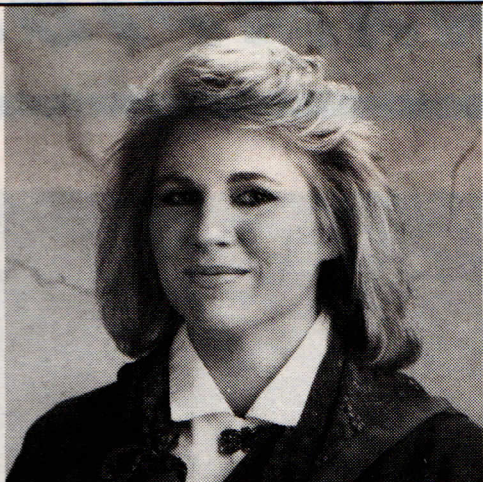

1) Pick up a "Residence Hall Reservation and Contract" from the Office of Residence Life (Cummock Hall, North campus) from Monday, April 11th through Friday, April 15th between 8:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

2) Carefully read and complete the contract. Be sure to clearly specify any preferences for roommates, building assignment, etc. in the space provided. An attempt will be made to honor all requests given space available.

3) Return the completed contract to the Business Office (Dugan Hall, South campus) with a $100 non-refundable housing deposit by 4:00 p.m. on Friday, April 15th. NOTE: Students returning contract to the Business Office after the above date and time will not receive on-campus housing for 1988-89.

4) Students will be notified on their specific building and room assignment by the Office of Residence Life.

Questions may be directed to the Office of Residence Life at ext. 2208 come cheer on your building's winning team in the campus-wide final competition of the Roommate Game. This outrageous event takes place on APRIL 7th in the RAT (Fox Hall) at 7:00 p.m. Learn some wild and crazy things about your neighbors as they compete for $200 worth of shopping.

Ski trip to Killington

On February 27th the RHA along with the Residence Hall Councils sponsored a ski trip to Killington, VT. The trip, organized by RA's Patrick Boyle and Lisa Cuoco, was great. After a 2½ hour bus ride to Vermont, the 35 passengers couldn't have asked for a better day. The weather was beautiful and the ski conditions were the best all year. It was a fun-filled day for all those students who took advantage of the opportunity. Thank you to all those who attended and to the RHA and Hall Councils for their support in making the trip such a success.

CLUBS

THERE WILL BE A VERY IMPORTANT MEETING FOR ALL CLUBS CONCERNING THE '88 - '89 CLUB FUNDING IN THE NORTH MULTI-PURPOSE ROOM ON MONDAY, APRIL 4th at 3:30 PM.

There will also be booyh sign-ups for this year's Spring Carnival. If you are having trouble thinking of an idea for your booth or need any more information concerning Carnie please come to the Activities Commission meeting on April 4th at 7 PM in Fox 412.

Party Tango

By Margaret Smith

Editor

When Dukakis announced last year that he was running for President, Massachusetts' first reaction, of course, was to cheer our local boy. The Mikes of America even made him an honorary member, saying that it was at long last time for a Mike in the White House.

But who really believed that, one year later, Dukakis, who bumbled on taxes and foreign policy in the Democratic debates, who made Paul Simon look interesting, would be the front runner for his party? Our Dukakis, leaving Gephardt, Simon and even spiffy Gore in obscurity?

Dukakis' one rival, Jesse Jackson, has also been nothing less than a shock to a still divided party. It is an embarrassment that in 1988, Jackson's color has made him a scare rather than simply earning him praise and respect as a front runner. Those who are scared are not the Republicans. They are right in Jackson's own party.

At this point the Democrats could learn a lesson in party unity from the Republicans, whose losers have either back Bush or stay silent about him.

Granted, this spirit of cooperation did not evolve over night, and eight years of Republican dominance have proven difficult for Democrats to rally together against right wing intimidation. But are the Democrats really willing to use that now as their excuse for party disunity? Is that enough for them to hand George Bush the presidency?

Let's suppose that the Democrat party gets its act together within the next months, which it is reluctantly doing now. Clearly, Dukakis will be the front runner til the end, unless Gore unexpectedly upstages him or bowties become the rage.

(What about Jesse? Yes, he would be a refreshing change from the watered-down Republicans-like Dukakis-that constitute much of the Democratic party, but again, his nomination brings fear of a guaranteed Bush victory.)

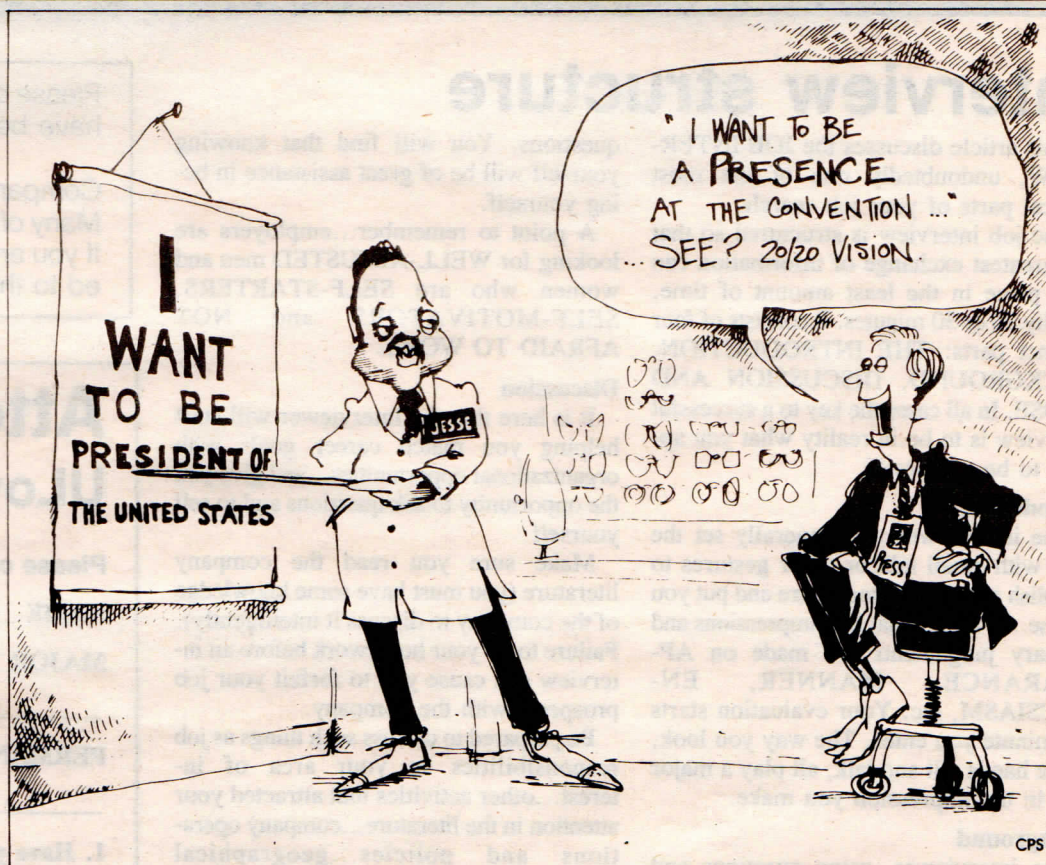

So, how can the Democrats restore their unity? A Dukakis/Jackson ticket may be their best alternative. Think of it: Jackson's charisma, diplomacy and minority appeal would balance Dukakis' pale persona and all-the-world-is-one-big-Massachusetts sense of foreign policy. Meanwhile, Dukakis has what Jackson lacks: a broad white base and solid experience in an elected office.

And who is to say that such a ticket is not already in the works? Dukakis, who weeks ago savaged Gephardt, has been mum about Jackson. After Michigan Dukakis even congratulated him. Such a ticket might be the best resolve for these two candidates and the best challenge the Democrats could pose to Bush.

Students have rights?

Students at the University of Lowell are slowly bidding farewell to their rights to student representation on campus. For years the administration has been trying to gain control over the students' rights. This year it looks like they may win, unless we as students speak out to this action. Students are citizens and citizens have rights. It is about time the administration realized this. They are not in total control as they would like to be. There are many guidelines that we as students and they as administrators must follow in order to keep the relationship between the administration and the students an open and fair line of communication. The administration is trying to close these lines in order to keep the upper hand in what seems a game of politics. It is time we as students let the administration know that we definitely are not going to stand still and let them close the lines. It has taken a long time to acquire rights as students. We cannot allow them to be removed unjustly at any time, now or in the future. Tim Rodrique, Student Government Association

Brenda Sadowski, Student Government Association.

Definition: Pound seizure - the practice of allowing shelter and pound animals to be used for research purposes.

Support is needed for legislation that is now before Congress which would effectively eliminate the use of shelter dogs and cats in research. The legislation, entitled The Pet Protection Act stipulates that researchers who use shelter animals are ineligible for federal funding.

The Pet Protection Act introduced as H.R. 778 by Representative Robert Mrazek in the House of Representatives and as S. 1457 by Senator Wendell Ford in the Senate. Both Bills prohibit pound seizure by denying Federal Funds to anyone who obtains or uses any animals acquired directly or indirectly from any animal shelter. In addition, the bill effectively prevents the stealing of pets for use in research by stipulating that federally funded researchers may not acquire any animal from "individuals who have not bred and raised such animals on their own premises." Passage of the Pet Protection Act would spell an end to the unnecessary suffering of an estimated 150,000 pet animals taken from shelters each year for use in questionable research experiments and unnecessary teaching demonstrations.

The Pet Protection Act will not bring a halt to all research which uses animals. It will simply protect our pets.

Pets suffer extreme psychological distress in the harsh laboratory environment. Dr. David Fanfarillo, a former laboratory researcher who worked with shelter animals stated that "Some dogs made themselves sick with worry and had to be destroyed. Others were so well trained that they wouldn't urinate or defecate in their cages. Thus they would die from burst bladders and strangulated bowels. All suffered self-inflicted pain because of their great love and trust in humans. Thus there is a vast difference between humane euthanization at a shelter and death in a laboratory."

As long as the research community continues to perceive shelters as cheap, dependable resources that can easily be exploited, it has no incentive to utilize more appropriate research alternatives. Now is our chance to speak up in behalf of our pets and demand that Congress enact the Pet Protection Act. Write your Senators and Representatives.

Career Corner

Interview structure

This article discusses the JOB INTERVIEW, undoubtedly one of the most critical parts of your job search.

The job interview is structured so that the greatest exchange of information can take place in the least amount of time, usually 20 or 30 minutes. It consists of four distinct parts: THE INTRODUCTION, BACKGROUND, DISCUSSION AND CLOSE. In all cases the key to a successful interview is to be in reality what you appear to be - yourself.

Introduction

The interviewer will generally set the tone with small talk or other gestures to establish a positive atmosphere and put you at ease...It is here that first impressions and primary judgements are made on APPEARANCE, MANNER, ENTHUSIASM, etc. Your evaluation starts the minute you enter. The way you look, shake hands, sit and talk, all play a major part in the impression you make.

Background

The interviewer, using questions and answers, begins to evaluate your qualifications and suitability for employment with the company...this initial judgement of you might be revised or confirmed...the interviewer notes HOW YOU HANDLE YOURSELF and seeks to evaluate and measure your SELF-EXPRESSION, SELF-CONFIDENCE, ABILITY TO RELATE TO OTHERS, MOTIVATION, INTEREST SPAN, PERSONAL VALUES and tries to determine if your CAREER AMBITIONS are balanced with your extracurricular activities. A student who has not participated in any sort of work experience, volunteer or community services program or campus activities might find it difficult to convince the interviewer that he or she has that extra drive the company is seeking.

A good self-assessment can make you more articulate and help you direct your thinking in responding to background questions. You will find that knowing yourself will be of great assistance in being yourself.

A point to remember...employers are looking for WELL-ADJUSTED men and women who are SELF-STARTERS, SELF-MOTIVATORS and NOT AFRAID TO WORK.

Discussion

It is here that the interviewer will start helping you match career goals with organizational opportunities...and give you the opportunity to ask questions and to sell yourself.

Make sure you read the company literature (you must have some knowledge of the company to discuss it intelligently). Failure to do your homework before an interview can cause you to forfeit your job prospects with the company.

Be prepared to discuss such things as job responsibilities in your area of interest...other activities that attracted your attention in the literature...company operations and policies...geographical preference in relation to those locations where the company functions, etc...Allow the interviewer to initiate discussion of salary, if he deems it appropriate.

The DISCUSSION is the critical part of an interview. The interviewer is trying to determine your qualifications and to match these with particular job openings...Consequently, know your immediate and long-range career objectives and be able to express them in a clear organized fashion.

Close

At this point the interviewer will give you the information needed to insure a clear understanding of the employment procedures. The interviewer may limit the remarks to an explanation of when to expect to hear from the company...make arrangements for testing...give you an application...arrange for a further meeting while the recruiter is on campus...or suggest a company visit.

Please check the bulletin board in the Placement Office to see if you have been selected for an interview from the pre-screening list.

Companies often send in job opportunities to the Placement Office. Many of these are posted on the bulletin board for Resume Release. If you are interested, sign the sheet and your resume will be forwarded to the company.

Who's Buried in Jesus

Who's Buried in Jesus Tomb

It probably comes as no surprise to you that this week we're talking about the resurrection of Jesus. After all this is Holy Week, the week that is probably the most sacred of all the weeks on the church calendar. The resurrection serves as the foundation of the Christian faith. Without it,-- if it is just another tale spun in the emotion of the moment, then our faith is dead. It is nothing more than a museum piece--a wishful thought, that is hardly worth getting excited about.

But the resurrection is worth getting excited about, because of all the claims the Bible makes about Jesus this is the easiest to validate. The evidence seems to point irrefutably to the fact that Jesus literally rose from the dead as the Bible says. Here are the facts with which we must deal. First is the nature of Roman crucifixion. It is a particular long and torturous ordeal. Second is the custom of burial. Jesus would have been wrapped in several layers of cloth and spices, placed in a cave-like tomb which was sealed with a heavy boulder. Third is the host of witnesses who are reported to have seen him, alive after his death. And fourth is the behaviour of his followers.

In all likelihood, Jesus actually died on the cross. But even if he had survived his torturous ordeal and revived in the cool tomb he certainly would have been in no condition to break out his tomb. As German critic David Strauss says, "It is impossible that One who had just come forth from the grave, half dead, who crept about weak and ill, who stood in the need of medical treatment, of bandaging, strengthening, and tender care, and who at last succumbed to suffering, could ever have given the disciples the impression that He was a conqueror over death and the grave; that He was the Prince of Life."

It is unlikely also, that the disciples stole the body, because they were people who willingly went to their death for their faith. No one, that I know of, gives his life for something he knows is a lie. If, they had stolen the body, why didn't just one of them make a last minute confession and put the whole rumour to rest, once and for all.

It also seems unlikely, that the disciples hallucinated and imagined seeing Jesus alive. There are just too many witnesses. Both biblical and secular sources both record that people saw Jesus. Sometimes, the record says there were several hundred people who claim to have seen him at the same time. If this explanation is true, then all of these people would have had to hallucinate the same thing at the same time.

It seems, then that the best explanation is the one that is found in the Bible. That Jesus really did rise from the dead. But what does the fact of the resurrection mean to you? How has it changed your life. Or is this week just another ritual--a meaningless tradition that comes around once a year. Carefully consider the events of this week and their meaning to you.

If you have questions about the Bible, or if you are concerned about your relationship with God and you'd like to talk to someone about it, please contact Campus Ambassadors at SIC Box 111N or call 667-9529.

Adult Children of Alcoholics and Dysfunctional Families

As adult children from dysfunctional families we understand the painful experiences of growing up in unhealthy environments, whether it was the disease of alcoholism, or other kinds of physical or emotional deprivation. As a group we are trying to have a 'positive outlook' on life today. This kind of attitude will allow us to experience joy, and we can move on a life path of acceptance, love, and freedom. We can choose to change our attitudes and this gives us that wonderful gift of freedom that we search for. The freedom to change to our unhealthy thinking and behavior to one of hope and health. The best way to become healthy is to attend meetings. At meetings we have the opportunities to learn from and to share our hope, support and caring with each other. The following information is the list of meetings held on campus.

Scully signs with Lowell

Liam Scully, a 6-3, 175 pound swingman at Marshfield, MA high school has signed a letter of intent to attend the University of Lowell to continue his education and basketball career. The announcement was made by Coach Doucette following Scully's signing during the early signing period.

Averaging 17 points per game as a junior for former Steve Churinello, Scully is playing his senior year for coach Ed Miller.

'We feel Liam is the type of player we're happy to have in our program,' commented Coach Doucette about his first signee for the Class of 1992.

'He can run, play defense, is athletic and can be a good offensive player. He fits right into the total program and type of system we have. And he is a real competitor.'

Next season, we should all have our eye on the newest addition to the basketball team.

Three Chiefs named to All-NECC teams

Leo Parent

Senior guard Bobby Licare of North Andover, MA and junior center Leo Parent of Lowell, MA, obviously on the basketball team, were named to the All New England Collegiate Conference first all-star team; and senior forward Gavin Cummings of Jersey City, NJ was voted to the second team. The All-NECC teams were announced following a vote by the seven head coaches.

In addition to their All-NECC accolades, Licare and Parent were named to the All-ECAC Division II North first all-star team. This marks the second straight season that the former Central Catholic High School teammates have been named to the NECC first team. Both were on the ECAC's second team last season.

'We're very happy that Leo and Bobby being named to the (All-NECC) first team for the second straight year,' commented head coach Don Doucette. 'We're very, very happy for Gavin getting the recognition from the other coaches in the NECC. He has had an unbelievable second half of the season and we feel he has played as well as any forward in the league.'

One of the top big men in the country, Parent is the Chiefs leading scorer (18.9 ppg) and rebounder (11.3 rpg). The 6-6 center is shooting 59 percent from the field and 81 percent from the foul line, second on the club in both categories behind Cummings and Licare, respectively. He has set new school records for most points (585) and rebounds (351) in a season this year. The best athlete on the Chiefs roster, Cummings, is having his best overall season this season. In addition to his outstanding offensive game, Cummings has often drawn the opposition's top offensive forward on defense. Congratulations to all members of the basketball team for a fine season and a great victory over Florida Southern and University of Alaska, Anchorage.

Doucette named NECC coach of the year

For the second straight year, University of Lowell men's basketball coach Don Doucette was voted the NECC Coach of the Year as selected by the conference's seven head coaches.

'I'm very happy about being voted this honor,' said Doucette. 'As I said last year, this award is a team effort. Without the outstanding work of my assistant coaches, Paul Faison and John Paganetti, and the players I would not be getting this award. They deserve all the credit for my getting the Coach of the Year award.'

Since coming to ULowell in 1983-84, Doucette has compiled an 81-63 record and turned the Chief's program into one of New England's best. The Chiefs won their first NECC Championship this year as well as the NCAA Division II title.

Doucette picked up his 100th career coaching victory this year in the Chiefs regular season finale against Keene State College. He now has an overall record of 106-69 in six seasons. Twice during his five seasons at Lowell, his teams have been voted the NABC District I Most Improved Team (1984 and 1987) and the Boston State College graduate was the NABC District I Coach of the Year last season.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT ERIS (not much)

The Romans left a likeness of Her for posterity--She was shown as a grotesque woman with a pale and ghastly look, Her eyes afire, Her garment ripped and torn, and as concealing a dagger in Her Bosom. Actually, most women look pale and ghastly when concealing a chilly dagger in their bosoms.

Her geneology is from the Greeks and is utterly confused. Either She was the twin of Ares and the daughter of Zeus and Hera; or She was the daughter of Nyx, goddess of night (who was either the daughter or wife of Chaos, or both), and Nyx's brother, Erebus, and whose brothers and sisters include Death, Doom, Mockery, Misery and Friendship. And that She begat Forgetfulness, Quarrels, Lies, and a bunch of gods and goddesses like that.

One day Mal-2 consulted his Pineal Gland* and asked Eris if She really created all of those terrible things. She told him that She had always liked the Old Greeks, but that they cannot be trusted with historic matters. "They were," She added, "victims of indigestion, you know."

Suffice it to say that Eris is not hateful or malicious. But She is mischievous, and does get a little bitchy at times.

*THE PINEAL GLAND is where each and every one of us can talk to Eris. If you have trouble activating your Pineal, then try the appendix which does almost as well. Reference: DOGMA I, METAPHYSICS #3, "The Indoctrine of The Pineal Gland."

I would like to thank everyone in the Plastics department for their concern and support. Special thanks to Alan Sunnerberg, Larry Stanton, and the ULowell EMT's for their help after my accident. Peggy O'Brien

Thank you Stephen, I could have never asked for anyone better. Love, Peggy

To Sank, Captain Stone, Shades, Doc, Speed Racer, AJ, the Fortran Saviour, and everyone else: I thank you for your much needed help now that my Week From Hell is over!! Over!! Over!! Over!! I guess when times are at their worst, people are at their best, and we find out who our friends really are. Signed Sci-Fi

Soup: If I had been too drunk in Eames' basement to run away from four foot high women with no teeth, I would have blown chunks too! -The Tor-mentor

What should I major in? Peers on Careers, Majors, & The System can help you pick a major!!

Questions: about Liberal Arts (majors, classes), career choices, registration, univ. policies? Answers: Peers on Careers, Majors, & The System (an open house for everyone).

Who knows what all those "school policies" mean? Peers on Careers, Majors & The System knows what you need to graduate and why!!

What can I do with my education? Peers on Careers, Majors & The System can show you!!

Peers on Careers, Majors & The System: Next time you submit personals for an event, be sure to tell people where and when (Wednesday, 30 March, 11am to 2pm, Mary E McGauvran Center [S.U.B., South], Main Lobby) The Typesetter

Colleen Riley: I didn't think God could create a person as pretty as you, a great personality, with a nice smile. The boy next door (2:00 MW)

Jay: So, you think I can't reach the sound barrier? One more high C and we'll both find out (and so will anyone else who is around). Come visit sometime and maybe I'll prove it. -Squeaky the blonde sailor

Almost NoMuTT or should I say MUFFIN? Do you play Lacrosse as well as you do soccer? Some friends from the other side of home want to know. The Blonde

Almost NoMuTT: You're right I was the one who needed the help, because your name was disproved again. Besides, I'm a very good actress (just kidding). Don't take it personally, 'sweatheart'. The Blonde

Tom, Missed you tonite - Hope you are feeling oh so much better! Lot'o Love from your mass babe Scott Sardy - You're wasting you time at the malls waiting for Tiffany. You should be at Bigger and Better places, like the Worcester Centrum!!! Oh, Scott, can you believe it!! Tiffany at the Centrum!! To Die!!

Deli Clerk: When I said slice it then, I meant thin! One pound of Polish ham, sliced thin!

Laurie, Scott, and Mary - And we're not going out tonight? And we're going to get some sleep?

To the ULowell B-Ball Team: congratulations Guys!!! You're the greatest! Thanks for making my freshman year the best it could have been. I'm going to miss you GO, MS, BL, BH, PK, and MB. Who's going to make me blush next year? And who am I going to give blisters to? Conrats again!!! Love, your Freshman Trainer

To Captain Stone: The Riunite on the couch was good, but not on the porch! John's roommate moves in for the kill and Sci-Fi intercepts. Interesting night, man. We'll have to do it again when I'm less conscious! Big neg!!! Signed Sci-Fi

D(2): Well, here it is, your personal. I hope you appreciate it! I have a question for you. When are we going to be able to go swimming again? This time we will make it a little more interesting. By the way, do dogs swim? I hope so!! Or we'll be in trouble. Lots of love to you and only you, ME

Scott: Sing me a song, you're the piano man. Oooooo -Cindy

Chris: I love that song!!!! -From one of your cute friends

Little Brown Girl, Don't hide behind "I can't". Don't think of Me with.... "I wish I had". "I should have." "I could have.. I wonder if" Little Italy

Little Brown girl, Wonderful things come in small packages. This I know, find out for yourself. I'm waiting! Little Italy

Little Brown Girl, The sun is setting on my time with you. Soon the heat of summer will be upon us. Will your true passion then be revealed to me? Little Italy

Water skiing in March? Go for it

Little Brown Girl, Lunch... Cruising...Wedding Bells...Dancing at night...Your xmas Kisses...A Champagne Encounter... These are Some of our memories. Little Italy

Karen...One little, Two little, Three little....oh heck, you might as well throw the whole team in...Would that be enough?

Karen...This is your long promised personal. Aren't you pleased? Now, let's see...the score is five, no six, well, maybe seven. How many more will be in the future? You animal you...Just try not to be too obvious. It's hard to keep yp with all the additions!!! Dulcey

LP1...We heard you spent most of spring break with you know who...was that in your thoughts or physically? After all, we all know how much of your mind (and body?) are taken up by her... Love HP and LP2

To LP1... Now that we know what your favorite color is...Are you easy also? It was difficult to tell how red you were the other day since you were wearing nothing else...you should spend some time at the beach...then all of you will match. Love, HP and LP2

NoMuTT - Flirting? is that what you call it?!! I thought it looked more like molestation! The term "crawling all over" comes to mind. -15th Floor Junior

The Typesetter - I appreciate your feeling that my secrets are safe. Dare I say what naturally comes next? Oh, what the hell! What else do you (would you) feel? -The Punster. P.S. I agree with your comments concerning the mental capacities of those involved. In fact, I believe I mentioned something along those lines myself a while back. I guess it's true what they say: Great minds think alike

The Punster: If you don't know by now.... And I've never claimed to have a great mind. The Typesetter

Jay: You call yourself a screamer?!! I don't believe it. (Prove it to me!) One of the girls at the party.

Skene - I'm sorry if I hurt you. If I'd know I would cause such pain, I would never have gone through with it. Please don't hate me. After all, with everything you've done to me, I still respect you!! -15th Floor Junior 15th Floor Junior: I hear not only do you respect him, but that you want more!!! The Typesetter

Pam on 15: Sorry for what I did Friday night. I wasn't thinking at all. I realize now what I did was wrong. I really didn't mean to do anything like that. Lauren Jay: Put me through the roof? Your offer sounds tempting, but I don't know. Maybe someday I'll let you try it, if you think you can handle it!

The Typesetter - I realize that you keep strange hours, but mine are far from normal... I think I asked this once before, but what else do you keep? The Punster

The Punster: 12 Drumettes a drumming, 11 maids a milking.... The Typesetter

NoMuTT - You say you gave out all the positive numbers? I really don't think standing on street corners, handing them to passersby counts. (It probably counts better than you, if you can run out of positive numbers) -15th Floor Junior

NoMuTT: I know Croc got leied, but in how many colors? My record stands at seven different colors. Green Eyes

Skene - I hate to tell you this, but I think number 47 is back, and as unruly as ever. -15th Floor Junior

Jay: Now I know what you mean when you say it's water soluble. I feel real bad about getting it so wet, but just think, it's a whole new style for. You should work on your new style a little more before showing it in public, though. Your impromptu hair stylist

To The 15th Floor Junior: Girlfriend, how could ya let him treat you so bad?? Green Eyes

Bagel: Footin' on the Merimack in March? Think I'll wait til late April to learn. The Typesetter

Jay- Whips and chains and Feelix? What else are you holding back that we don't know about? Enquiring minds want to know. (Like me!)

NoMuTT - Things were looking mighty soggy on Saturday! (Or should I say limp?) -15th Floor Junior Bagel - Just one sip, please!?! I swear, I haven't had any all night. -15th Floor Junior.

NoMuTT: Keep your rear-view mirror very clean to see all those wonderful things behind you. Green Eyes P.S. By the way, it's very nice!!

Question: Where can you find lots of good books about plants and trees and things? Answer: At the Branch library!! -The Punster

I just love my Geology lecture. Every morning, I'm rocked to sleep. -The Punster

NoMuTT: Glad to hear that your crocodile finally got leied. Too bad I can't say the same about you. Lisa Skeme: You look awefully funny with flat hair. But I must admit, number 47 was right on target! -15th Floor Junior

To Teddy, George, Harris, Timothy and Bigfoot: I think we're alone now. There doesn't seem to be anyone around. (Thank you Tommy James.) The Lunatics (ex-)Roommate

The Typesetter - Isn't it fun, picking on Freshmen? And we had such good targets, too. We'll have to try it again sometime. Don't be such a stranger (in as much as you can avoid it). -15th Floor Junior 15th Floor Junior: Freshmen will be Freshmen. There is nothing that can be done about that. (Of course, we were all freshmen at one time - scary thought!) As for being a stranger, my roommate has to ask if I live with him!!!! The Typesetter

Zorba: You remembered?!? (Bless you) Green Eyes

"Good luck" ME - If anyone is going to play F.T.D. to P.K. it's going to be me. From Me not You

Tom: You gotta love it!! -Cindy

Cindy: Why does he "gotta love it"? The Typesetter

Al C. The Italian Stallion, Last Weekend was great! I can't wait to do it again! I bet I'm the best you've had. Are the rumors about your recent past true? You'll be seeing more - a lot more - of me! Love, You Know Who

To the NCAA Division II Champs: Congratulations!!! You had a great season and an incredible weekend in the Championships. How does it feel being No.1? We all know you more than deserved it. Karen. Good luck Seniors and I'll see the rest of you next year.

Silias Dogpoot - It's not my fault that you are the bastard son of lesbian truckdrivers, but could you please tone down your rude language on the personals page? -Predator

Russian Swim Team- I'll take you all on you ugly commies! -Predator

Godfathers - paisans, our Don isn't impressed with your choice of alias. And we've just been waiting to get our hands on some brittle arms and legs... comprehend? -The Anthony Bros.

Dr. Fate - Yor respect the power of Life Force; therefore you respect nothing. Not surprising. NoMiND may not be able to respond to twenty personals at a time, but you can't even answer one! Leave the page before further embarrassing yourself. -The Anthony Bros.

Silias Dogpoot - If we had anything to say to you, we'd be laughing too hard to get it out. -The Anthony Bros

The Anthony Bros: You obviously had something to say to Silias, and it was quite clear to me. What happened to "laughing too hard to get it out"? The Typesetter

Doctor Victor von Doom : I am waiting.... The Necromancer

ULowell Students: come watch the Roommate Game final competition April 7 in the Fox Rat at 7:00

Eval Twin - I beg to differ. I am not behind. Even if I were, I would never quit. But my business here is not with you. However, when my business is finished, I shall be more than happy to eternally torture you. -The Necromancer

Silias Dogpoot - Please re-read what you wrote two weeks ago. I shall ignore those inane comments, for you were obviously delerious at the time. Otherwise, refer to my statements to the Eval Twin. -The Necromancer

I'd like everyone to meet my new protege, one of Devastation Incs Affiliates, the Hack. -The Hammer

Xuxu: Thanks for listening to me and all my so called girl problems. I want to wish you all the best with your new boyfriend. If he breaks up with you, he doesn't know what he's missing. Take it from me, I know a class act when I see one. Your friend, "The Lady in Waiting"

The Lady in Waiting: "So called girl problems"??? The Typesetter

The Tongue Twister, What is the highest you have counted to now two in one night. I beat you with four or is it five (beers that is). The blonde or brunette

Bob O: What's the big S.E.G. for and how many beers are you up to in one day? The blonde or brunette

Jason Carkouros, How about a date? From an interested party

The Tongue Twister: I know your tongue has had some action. What about the rest of your body? The blond or brunette

Mouse, This is all your fault. I would never be involved with the Tongue Twister and 801 B.(O) if it weren't for you! I want to thank you. They both have qualities that any girl would love; and I have them both. Thanks again, The Blonde of the Blonde or Brunette

801 B.(O): What can you do?!!! I can't wait to find out!! Maybe the Mouse can fill me in on your abilities? Awaiting patiently, The Blonde or Brunette

Tongue Twister in 801: I can't wait until our next encounter. If your other parts are half as good as your tongue, I'll be in ecstasy. If you liked my noises, wait until you hear me when I'm...well, I'll keep it clean. Until our next tongue session, tonguefully yours, The Blonde or Brunette 15th Floor Junior - No need for a doctor. My, "pinballs" were from a computer pinball game. I can't remember who let me play. Bagel P.S. I gave you a sip of my cooler, now you owe me one

Zorba - True, gving is better than receiving, but receiving is also nice. Bagel. P.S. Manual stimulation never did excite me. I don't know about you though

Silias Dogpoot - First off, nice f*cking name. Second, maybe you should consider your "attack" on Devastation, Inc. to be a suicidal mission. You need help. Third, ruining the Jokester was about as big a thrill for us as when your hand falls asleep for you. -The Hammer

Dr. Fate - Dr. Faaate? Where arrre you? Haven't you taken enough of a beating? If I have a puny existence (as you say), but I'm up one on you, then you must be really lonely!!! -The Hammer

Star - Just this once I shall break my own law and communicate with you. What exactly do you want from The Grim Reader? How shall I contact you? I shall no longer play games. Respond or perish! -The Grim Reader

Silias Dogpoot - You are obviously an ignoramus. There is more than one way to skin a Typesetter. Instead of spouting off your stupidity, why do you not just sit idly by with your idle mind and observe. -The Grim Reader

The Grim Reader: An idle mind hasn't stopped you. The Typesetter notnAP: I can't believe all the bad luck that can happen to you in one month. You know I'll be here for you when you need me. Good luck in getting a new car. Love, "The Lady in Waiting"
